- (a) where there has been a false statement or misrepresentation or non-disclosure in obtaining the policy – that the false statement or misrepresentation or non-disclosure, whether fraudulent or otherwise, was in relation to some fact or thing of such a nature as would have justified the approved insurer charging a higher premium in respect of the policy than the premium paid or payable by the employer; or
 - (b) where there has been a breach of or failure to comply with a term, condition, warranty or provision referred to in subsection (1)(d) – that the breach or failure was such that it contributed materially to the circumstances in which the approved insurer agreed to pay or otherwise became liable to pay the moneys sought to be recovered.
