- (1) This section applies when normal weekly earnings are to be calculated for a worker who is entitled to compensation under this Act.

- (2) Subject to this section, the worker's normal weekly earnings immediately before the first compensation date are the gross remuneration paid to the worker by:
 - (a) the employer liable to compensate the worker; and
 - (b) any other employer for whom the worker ordinarily works.
- (3) The following are included in the calculation of the worker's normal weekly earnings:
 - (a) if the worker works overtime in accordance with a regular and established pattern – the amount of the wages attributable to that overtime;
 - (b) any over-award payment received by the worker;
 - (c) any climate allowance, district allowance, leading hand allowance, qualification allowance, shift allowance (if the worker works shiftwork in accordance with a regular and established pattern) or service grant received by the worker;
 - (d) unless the worker is a fly-in fly-out worker or drive-in drive-out worker – the value (not exceeding, in the aggregate, 35% of average weekly earnings) of any electricity, meals or accommodation provided to the worker by an employer in a form other than an amount of money paid or credited to the worker.
- (4) The following are not included in the calculation of the worker's normal weekly earnings:
 - (a) a superannuation contribution made by the worker's employer;
 - (b) the amount of wages attributable to overtime other than as mentioned in subsection (3)(a);

- (5) The following applies for the calculation of the worker's normal weekly earnings:

 - (b) if, immediately before the first compensation date, the remuneration paid to the worker by a particular employer varied from week to week – the portion of the normal weekly earnings provided by that employer must be calculated as equal to the relevant average remuneration from that employer;
 - (c) the normal weekly earnings in respect of the worker's employment with the employer liable to compensate the worker must be calculated under this paragraph instead of under paragraph (a) or (b) and are equal to the all-employer average remuneration if:
 - (i) the worker had been in employment with that employer for less than 4 weeks immediately before the first compensation date; and
 - (ii) it is impracticable to calculate the normal weekly earnings of the worker, having regard both to the worker's period of employment with the employer and the period during which the worker likely would have continued to work for the employer had the injury not occurred;
 - (d) if it is relevant whether a regular and established pattern of overtime or shiftwork was worked for a particular employer immediately before the first compensation date:
 - (i) if the worker was in employment with the employer for at least 6 months before the first compensation date – regard must be had to the overtime or shiftwork that the worker worked for that employer during the 6 months immediately before the first compensation date; or
 - (ii) otherwise – regard must be had to the following:
 - (A) the overtime or shiftwork that the worker worked for that employer; and

- (B) whether, in the normal course of that employment, the worker would likely have worked overtime or shiftwork had the injury not occurred;
 - (e) if there is doubt about the method to be used for the calculation of the worker's normal weekly earnings – the method of calculation that results in the greatest amount being calculated as the worker's normal weekly earnings must be used.
- (6) For subsection (2)(b), a worker ordinarily works for an employer immediately before the first compensation date if:
- (a) the worker was in employment with the employer on the first compensation date; and
 - (b) the worker had been in employment with the employer for at least 6 weeks immediately before the first compensation date.

- (b) in respect of any period during which the worker is certified by a medical practitioner to be totally or partially incapacitated for work, if the injury was the reason for, or materially contributed to, the incapacity.
- (3) The weekly amount of the compensation is calculated as the difference between the following amounts:

 - (b) the worker's normal weekly earnings immediately before the first compensation date.
- (4) The weekly amount is in addition to any other compensation to which the worker is entitled under this Part.

- (6) If a worker retires before the end of a period during which the worker would otherwise be entitled to compensation under this section:
 - (a) the retirement does not affect the worker's entitlement to compensation; and

(7) This section is subject to sections 65A and 65B.

(1D) The following applies for the calculation of the period during which compensation is to be paid to a worker under this section:

- (a) if the worker's injury date is 2 years or more before the date on which the worker attains the worker's future pension age and the worker suffers relevant permanent impairment at a percentage of the whole person equal to not less than 15% –

the compensation is to be paid:

- (a) the amount calculated by using the formula in subsection (3A);
- (b) the amount equal to the percentage of average weekly earnings prescribed by regulation or, if no percentage is prescribed – 250% of average weekly earnings.

N is amount of the normal weekly earnings of the worker immediately before the first compensation date;

A is the amount of average weekly earnings at the particular date mentioned in subsection (3);

C is the amount of average weekly earnings applying at the first compensation date.

- (4) Where a worker is totally incapacitated for work, his or her normal weekly earnings in respect of the period of his or her total incapacity after the expiration of 2 years after the first day of the period in respect of which he or she first became entitled under section 64 or this section to compensation shall be taken to be:

expenses.

- (6) For the purposes of this section, a worker shall be taken to be totally incapacitated if he or she is not capable of earning any amount if he or she were to engage in the most profitable employment, if any, reasonably available to him or her, and having regard to the matters referred to in section 68.
- (7) Where a worker is totally incapacitated for work and the compensation the worker is entitled to under subsection (1B) is less than the amount calculated in accordance with subsection (12), the worker shall, notwithstanding subsection (1B), but subject to subsection (10), be entitled to compensation equal to 90% of his or her loss of earning capacity or the amount so calculated, whichever is the lesser.

- (a) where there has been a false statement or misrepresentation or non-disclosure in obtaining the policy – that the false statement or misrepresentation or non-disclosure, whether fraudulent or otherwise, was in relation to some fact or thing of such a nature as would have justified the approved insurer charging a higher premium in respect of the policy than the premium paid or payable by the employer; or
 - (b) where there has been a contravention of a term, condition, warranty or provision referred to in subsection (1)(d) – that the contravention was such that it contributed materially to the circumstances in which the approved insurer agreed to pay or otherwise became liable to pay the moneys sought to be recovered.

the Nominal Insurer shall, subject to subsection (3), have the same rights, powers, duties and liabilities in respect of the claim as the approved insurer would have had if the approved insurer had provided the indemnity referred to in paragraph (c).

- (2) Where an approved insurer is unable to make a payment required to be made under a policy of insurance or indemnity issued in accordance with this Act in respect of a claim to which subsection (1) applies, the approved insurer or a person holding in relation to the approved insurer the office of liquidator, receiver, receiver and manager or official manager shall:

- (3) A notice under subsection (1) given after the time specified in that subsection shall contain a statement that the policy of insurance or indemnity against liability under this Act as existing between the employer and the approved insurer shall, in accordance with subsection (2), expire 28 days after the notice is given.
