- (i) a research authorisation;
- (j) a medical kit authorisation.

118 Suitability of authority holder – individuals

- (1) In deciding whether an individual (other than a health practitioner) is a suitable person to hold an authority, the CHO must have regard to the following:
- (a) the knowledge, experience and qualifications of the individual in relation to the regulated substances to which the authority relates;
  - (b) the dealings with regulated substances to which the authority relates and the purpose of the dealings;
  - (c) another matter prescribed by regulation.

- (2) However, an individual is not a suitable person to hold an authority if:

    - (i) an offence against this Act;
    - (ii) an offence in Australia or elsewhere in relation to a regulated substance; or

- (3) Despite subsection (2), the CHO may decide an individual is a suitable person to hold an authority if satisfied:
- (a) the individual's dealings with regulated substances authorised, or to be authorised, by the authority would not be inconsistent with the objects of this Act if the CHO decided that the individual is a suitable person; and

  - (c) an administrator has not been appointed for the body corporate in the 5-year period before the day the application for the authority is made.
- (2) However, if a body corporate is not a suitable person for an authority under subsection (1), the CHO may decide the body corporate is a suitable person to hold an authority if satisfied:
- (a) the body corporate's dealings with regulated substances to which the authority relates would not be inconsistent with the objects of this Act if the CHO decided the body corporate is a suitable person; and

120 Suitability of nominated person – certificate of registration

An individual is a suitable person to be the nominated person for a certificate of registration if the individual:
